

Today's Featured Activity: Window View Drawing

If the weather isn't great for getting outside, or if you're not able to go outside, it's a good opportunity to do some window view drawing!

Here's how you do it!

- Set up your drawing or journaling tools at your windowsill. This could be pencils, crayons, markers or paint, whatever you feel most comfortable with, as well as paper and a hard surface to draw on.
- Draw the frame of your window on the edges of the page.
- Now draw what you're seeing just within that frame. Try to be as detailed as possible, include everything you see: trees, buildings, fences, sky, clouds, rain, sun, include birds if they fly over, squirrels, flowers - the list is endless!
- Now get on another sheet of paper! Draw your window frame on the edges of the page again. This time, though, draw a view of a magical place that you wish you were seeing outside your window. Is it the jungle, the ocean, a farm, or a different planet all together?

The next time you're outside, look more closely at what you were seeing through your window: did you notice something new that you hadn't noticed before? Did you miss something small that you couldn't see from your window? Grab another piece of paper and pretend you're a squirrel or a bird or a bug, and draw what they might see looking at your window!

Did you do this activity? Post a photo on Instagram and tag @clctrust or use #clctrust.

Have suggestions for activities you'd like to see? Send us an email!

Columbia Land Conservancy | clctrust.org

